

College students urged to help themselves by helping others

16 November 2017

North East Scotland College is hosting a Volunteering Fair next week to encourage students to consider the benefits of volunteering with one of a wide variety of organisations, both local and national.

This event, organised by the College's Information and Advice team, will be publicised across the College to encourage students from all courses to participate. Organisations sending representatives to the event include: Act Aberdeen, ACVO, Befriend a Child, NESCU, Inspire, Drugs Action, Childline, Momentum, RSPB, Scouting, Grampian Hospital Radio, Royal Volunteering Service, Sue Ryder Care, Adventure Aberdeen (Duke of Edinburgh Award), CHSS and the College's own Students' Association.

Zuzana Banicova, Information and Advice Manager, said, "Volunteering has clear benefits for both the volunteer and the person or group they are helping. It could enable our students to enhance their CVs, increase their confidence, meet new people and feel good about helping their communities. North East Scotland College is committed to helping its students become responsible citizens and we hope that the annual Volunteering Fair will continue to inspire our students to help others."

The Volunteering Fair takes place in North East Scotland College's Aberdeen City Campus on Tuesday 21st November from 11am - 2pm.
