

Industrial Action at Scotland's Colleges

26 April 2017

The lecturers' union, the EIS-FELA is proposing strike action on Thursday 27 April 2017. EIS-FELA, has recently balloted members in relation to strike action and has notified North East Scotland College (NESCol), along with most other colleges in Scotland, that it intends to call its members out on strike. Not all College lecturers are members of EIS-FELA and not all EIS-FELA members will strike.

All NESCol campuses will remain open to students during Thursday's proposed strike action.

The College expects that most classes will run as normal and, therefore, we would encourage students to attend College on Thursday. It may be that certain classes will not run as normal. If this happens affected students will be informed where this is the case and provided with information, as soon as practicably possible, about what they should do.
